YouTube Kids is for ages 3 to 7 - appropriate advertisements and videos protect them in their early digital world years

Children using YouTube, aged 8-14 spend on average 60 minutes per day on YouTube

YOUTUBE

GOOD POINTS

1. It's free to use on all devices, consoles and TV's with a premium version as an option.
2. All ages can use YouTube (and YT Kids), whether it's at home, in the classroom or in public. Used in the right way it can be very rewarding.
3. It has become the Go-To place to learn to do things for yourself, whether it's applying makeup, Dads and DIY, fashion ideas or gamers following walkthroughs.
4. The reporting system is simple and easy to use.
5. There is a Mature Content Filter which, for the most part, stops adult content popping up on your screens.

BAD POINTS

1. There is a lot of extreme content on YouTube that are rarely filtered off the site.
2. "Vloggers" become their celebrity idols and they wish to model their life around what they see on these channels, which is generally for show a lot of it to gain subscribers.
3. Screen time on YouTube gets excessive very fast, children can spend 3-5 hours an evening on YouTube.
4. The content isn't always engaging and helpful for children, if they're snappy and grumpy whilst using it, this is a sign they're needing a break from it.

Parent Opinion:

Mother of 3, 7 & 16-year-old

My younger children can only use it with the Mature Content Filter on. Generally, I like YouTube, but they do spend a lot of time on it. I also worry because there have been occasions where graphic or violent videos have come on their screens that have upset them and it's very hard to stop from happening.
